

December 2024 Newsletter

Many publishers accept submissions in the first, second, and third quarters each year. However, each industry follows its own system and timeline for soliciting submissions.

Choose companies that handle your genre. Look online for their submission requirements. Keep your eye on them. If a publisher accepts submissions, they'll advertise them on their website. Like any other business, they have down times. Publishers and staff are involved in local, national, or international events or professional fairs during the year.

Here are a few companies accepting submissions right now: Go to the website and check it out.
